I. INTRODUCTION

The philosophy of pleasant governance illustrates the principle of clarity, which is justifiable. The principle does not only refer to the formulation mechanisms, its implementation, policy evaluation, activities, or programs, instead it also creates opportunities for people to suggest, counter, and reprimand government strategies.

In line with the actualization of the transparency or openness principle, the government enacted and implemented Number Law 14 of 2008 on Public Information Disclosure. This created an avenue for the public to gain access to information on various public strategies and assessment. Furthermore, the government needs to be committed to the right of its citizens, to ensure proper implementation of transparent and democratic governance that is free, and truthful, with non-discriminatory information on its procedures and programs.

As anticipated by the local government in line with the 2004 Law Number 32 regarding regional government, community participation in development is seen by the extent to which the community accesses and exercises various forms of social control over local government policies. Therefore, the local government, along with the City Council of Manado, is aimed at organizing a responsible and transparent system.

Irrespective of the fact that Law 14 of the 2008 Public Information Transparency policy has been executed and enforced in Manado city, however, the fact remains that the transparency policy is expected to assist the public in accessing information from the government without restrictions. In accordance with the description described, an in-depth study on the phenomenon was conducted on this research.

II. LITERATURE REVIEW

A. Implementation of Public Policy

The implementation of public policy which is one of the activities in the public policy process is often contradictory notwithstanding the fact that the policy product is capable of restricting the policymaker itself. Therefore, its implementation requires a genuinely profound understanding of public policy studies. In order words, the context associated with the implementation, comprises of several categories. The first drafts the program with a comprehensive explanation of tasks, formulation of unclouded objectives, as well as the determination of clear achievement concerning cost and time. Secondly, it implements programs by utilizing structures, personnel, funds as well as other resources, and their right procedures and techniques. Thirdly, Set up a suitable program, endeavor to supervise it regularly and in addition to assessing the policy implementation (1). Additionally, public policy deals with processes, techniques, operations, and the proficiency of authorized executives to interpret and employ public policy to accomplish and understand the desired vision and expectations. This view will help researchers better understand public policy, even though it has been formulated correctly in its implementation, its realization is challenging.

B. Policy Implementation Model

The policy leads to the implementation and actualization of models. Many factors determine the success of policy implementation, and each is interconnected. To deepen the understanding of several factors involved, the Meril S. Grindle Model defined the implementation theory as a political and administrative process which is driven by the policy's content and its background. It also claimed that the process of policy implementation starts once the aims and goals have been developed, the action programs outlined, and some cash reserve assigned to accomplish these aims and targets. According to Charles O. Jones, implementation of policies is an exercise proposed to perform a program while concentrating on three principal actions; 1) Arrangement, creation or transferring of resources, units and procedures to aid in the proper functioning of the program, 2) Interpretation and understanding of the program, 3) Function, which deals with the operation of conventional activities involving the prearrangement of goods and services. Transparency in the execution of Good Governance can be described as reliable and effective development management by democracy, prevention of misallocation of insufficient investment revenues and the avoidance of crime both politically and administratively, executing financial discipline, developing legal certainty and political environment for the progress of entrepreneurial exercises. The phrase good governance means upright, democratic and impressive governance of government. The execution of suitable governance management within the government cannot be divided from the execution of governance management system that constitutes several results of the execution of management services (preparation, formulating, actuating and controlling) conducted expertly and regularly. Execution of the management system can lead to a beneficial alliance among the government, private firm sector, and the society. Hence, it is anticipated of the government agency environment to offer exceptional service to society.

Although, Sedarmayanti, discloses that good governance is the practice of establishing state power in executing the provision of public goods and services known as governance. Hence, transparency in the management of local government can be observed in the following; 1) one form of government responsibility to the masses and 2) resolution to enhance the management of effective governance and administration. This decreases favorable circumstances for collusion, corruption, and nepotism (CCN) practices. Transparency is one of the important necessities for developing good governance. Once there is transparency in every policy and resolution in the organization and government, decorum can be developed. Therefore, transparency is the government's impartiality in postulating information linked to the public's resource management systems and also ensuring that this information gets to individuals need it.

C. Transparency in Local Government Implementation

The most important ethics of transparency in the management of provincial government is the principal that reveals the privilege of the public to get appropriate, truthful and fair information concerning the management of the local government while preserving the security of the personal, state and secret rights of the state. Execution of the transparency principle in the local government management permits the society to understand different information concerning the effective and fair management of society. Transparency of local governance creates an opportunity for the public to become aware of "make decisions and the reasons behind such decisions." Utomo stated that the conception and execution of regional autonomy don't vary from the definition and the utmost aim would add illuminate the good governance for a government that comprises of elements, receptive, effective, culpable, challenges, and requests of the region. Hence, the local government can guarantee that the autonomy of the region and society would soon be accomplished (5). According to the aforementioned illustration of transparency, this offers the theory that transparency problems are things that need to be accomplished with the scheme of achieving an effective governance. #### B. Manado City Government Implementation

In the execution of transparency policy implementation of the government in conducting administrative jobs, the local government exhibits its obligation in conducting understandable and obligated local governance as stated in law number 14 of the 2008 public information disclosure. The transparency scheme, as illustrated above, has been through orderly and determinable phases that are dependent on the decrees suitable and acknowledged by the local government and the city's legislature.

To examine the execution procedure of the scheme, it is important to examine the following; 1) entity of the policy. 2) Strategies adopted in its execution .3) Target Group According to law 14 of 2008 on public information disclosure, it was stated that the execution of a transparent metropolitan had been deliberated upon by the head of the district, mayor and deputy mayor to reach compromise.

To analyze Law Number 14 of 2008 on public information disclosure in accordance to the implementation, the researchers conducted the following strategies: 1) Objectives 2) Scope 3) Benefits.

These are described as follows:

The purpose of its implementation as a form of responsibility in carrying out the systemic tasks of regional governments as previously stated, the council reveals its obligation in conducting clear and trustworthy local governance. A notable change is required for honesty in all spheres of governance, particularly in the issues of public services like;

Information that has to do with the whole growth preparation procedure either vision/mission urban development program, yearly organization beginning from the metropolitan village, sub-district, and municipal level.

State budget revenues information from the results of the discussion at the city level, and the budgeting process in determining State budget revenues.

Spatial planning information at the inception of the implementation result.

Implementation of a physical and non-physical development project from the result of activity allocation, the appointment of a tender committee to winner submitted to the community.

Observations procedure begins from the evaluation of supervised objectives, management of people, and audit result.

Hence, it is deduced that the extent of information revelation concerning the transparency of Manado metropolitan administration is to create information that must be acknowledged by the government, in addition to authorization and retributions for local government work entities or public organizations that do not produce information.

Merits of transparency policy for Manado City Governance; natives or individuals expect the government to provide excellent services. Every society in the region needs the services of the government, however, in the course of these tasks, a lot of people think that public services in the area are still exposed to exploitation and are likely to be out of service. Out of service simply means the service is usually hidden or purposely hidden, handled via an inaccessible, questionable, and unaccountable behavior.

Besides the dialogues carried out by analysts in engaging and increasing the merits of transparency policy, analysts have conducted Forum Group Discussion (FGD) on the results obtained on Thursday, April 02, 2015.

The essence of this review is to get a more detailed interpretation of the execution procedure of the transparency policy of governance in Manado City. It was concluded in this review that transparency of the Manado City administration offered a lot of benefits to the inhabitants of Manado metropolitan.

One of the merits associated with this type of governance is that the public is obligated to provide adequate support to the government in decreasing collusion, corruption, and nepotism (CCN).

Secondly, inhabitants openly engage in policy schemes initiated by the government. They also have the right to acquire information on the policies initiated which also has a notable effect on democratization and attempts to develop good governance (Source FGD, April 2, 2015).

According to some respondents who attended the Forum Group Discussion held on April 2, 2015, the zeal of the Manado city government in implementing the principle of good governance is seen in online media with it transparent administration.

In the Group Discussion Forum, the following conclusions were obtained:

The transparency policy is useful, and the public is allowed to gain access to information directly through www.manado.kota.co.id or other media outlets.

The mayor is aimed at ensuring a transparent government administration, where the public is able to ascertain the development of regional financial balance daily through its Post balance media.

Its implementation in all Local government units of the administrative section.

Therefore, it is concluded that transparency not only provides benefits in creating good governance while preventing the practice of corruption but also improves quality public participation and supervision.

As previously described, community involvement is required and the society plays an essential role. Good governance exist if its citizens are mutually supportive, responsible, active, and conscious, in collaboration with a responsive, transparent, and listening government.

Therefore, it is important for the government to involve the community before making any decision. This is carried out to minimize the emergence of conflicted society, and the application of transparency principles, which requires honesty, in its implementation.
